seen other treatments on his face, but he was afraid to start using another treatment until his facial scars were gone. He wanted to keep his facial scars, and knowing that I am one of those doctors, he gave me a call. I would like to note that as a plastic surgeon, I believe that some people are born with scars, but most of them are acquired. There are many causes of facial scars, such as burns from fire, chemical burns, or even laser skin treatments. I had seen some patients with these scars, and I know what it feels like to have them, and I am very sympathetic towards them. I know how painful it is to have burns on your face. I had burns on my face a few years ago, and it was extremely painful. I would sit in the chair every day, and sometimes I would feel so depressed, and it made it even more painful. Although I treat my patients every day, I still remember those days when the burns on my face were new, and I think about my patients who are in pain, and how I would put my right hand over my chest and feel the pain and the anxiety, but I try to forget about that feeling. Today, I am proud to say that I am a doctor of plastic surgery and dermatology with my big interest on plastic surgery and skin diseases. After finishing my residency training and fellowship in Las Vegas, I began my career in plastic surgery, and for more than 10 years now, I have never looked back. For you, this is a testimony of being able to help people like my patient. For the patient with facial scars, their concern and focus goes beyond the skin. Many of them can forget to take care of themselves, to think about their health, and to do a good job with the rest of their lives. After working with my patients, I always remind them to take care of their health, as well as the health of their family. For those patients who think that they are the only ones who have scars on their faces, I would like to say that we have a lot of patients who also have scars on their backs, and I have seen them all in my practice. Plastic surgery can treat all kinds of scars and get rid of them. If you have any questions or concerns about your scars, please give me a call. This blog was created with the hope that it may inspire others to greater mindfulness and acceptance. Monday, February 19
