SAS statistical analysis software version 9.1.3 sp4 portableNigeria: Government to Provide Basic Services to Home Owners with Marital Restraint 30 November 2010, Abuja – The Nigerian government will provide basic services to home owners in Abuja, and various parts of the country, with the Federal Capital Territory (FCT) taking lead and other States following suit. The Basic Services for Home Owners Initiative is part of the new 10-year Comprehensive Social Action and Transformation Plan (CSAPT) of the Federal Government of Nigeria. The CSAPT and the Basic Services for Home Owners Initiative (BSFOI) will take the form of a 10-year programme that will focus on putting in place systems for delivery of basic services to the poor and vulnerable, at the primary, secondary and tertiary levels of the economy and society. The main objective is to ensure that all Nigerians receive the following socio-economic services from the federal government: Basic electricity Basic water Zero cost security (State Police) Basic education and shelter (including education and nursing) Basic health care Basic power supply All of which are to be available in all communities in the country. In the FCT alone, over 20 million people are resident and live in slum-like conditions that are an environmental and disease threat to the community and the environment. According to the FCT, more than 90% of the city's residents are deprived of the basic services. The FCT and the city's booming real estate property markets have created tensions and epidemics between the poor communities and other residents, often resulting in violence, armed robbery, kidnap and extortion. Within the FCT, officials have pointed out that the problem of theft is ongoing and getting worse because of rampant corruption, lack of public security and the absence of basic services in the suburbs and other parts of the city. The FCT Executive Committee made the announcement at a press conference yesterday, when it explained that in the foreseeable future, it would be able to provide a basic set of services to thousands of "poor and vulnerable people in the FCT and other parts of

A: This method is called asymptotic matching. If you match the asymptotics of $J_n(x)$ for $x \rightarrow \infty$ and $x \rightarrow 0$ (or $x \rightarrow -\infty$) with the coefficients of the Taylor expansion of the real exponential, you can find the coefficients of the Taylor series of the real Bessel function around $x = 0$. That's enough to prove that they converge to a real number (since for every number a there's a unique polynomial $p(t)$ such that $p(x) = a$ for all x close enough to 0).
