When learning to use Photoshop, make sure to learn about the layers on your pages. If you don't understand how layers work, you can get yourself into a lot of trouble if you're not careful. Although I show you how to create multiple layers in the next chapter, here's a quick refresher on how to work with layers. Let me say that one more time: Layers. Layers. Layers. Think of a layer as a sheet of plywood. If you paint on the first layer of plywood, then paint over it, the paint will be on both the first and second layers of plywood. Other image editing software, such as CorelDraw and GIMP, utilize a very different object-based drawing style, called vector drawing, where each layer is like a vector-based object that only contains its own pixels. Therefore, each layer can't affect pixels that are below it. (In other words, if you change the color of a red layer, only the red pixels below that layer change.) Layers make the process of photo manipulation much easier than it would be if you didn't have layers.

Creating a new project To get started, create a new file. It's easiest to just use the default Photoshop CS6 document template. Open it and rename it `SP2010PhotoshopTemplate.psd` (as shown in Figure 3-1). Figure 3-1: Open the default Photoshop document template, make sure the document size is set to 4,200 x 1,600, and set the number of projects (layers) to 3. Setting the initial size Set the size of the document to 4,200 x 1,600 pixels. Then go to Size⇒Size and choose pixels. However, any dimension can be set to pixels. You can also set the size to a specific number of pixels by going to Document⇒Document Size and choosing your preference. Setting the initial number of projects Each project, or layer, is one or more Photoshop layers that can contain all the various elements that you would edit in a piece of your project. In this template, you have three projects (layers): one for the home page, one for the contact page, and one for the services page. Having more than one project layer saves you a lot of time when you're doing photo retouching. For example, if you accidentally red-

Ligand directed formation of nitrogen-doped transition metal-porphyrin assemblies. Regioselective conversion of [NiII(TPP)]·[PF6]- (1·PF6-) in the presence of NH<sub>2</sub>-NH<sub>2</sub>L ligand in MeCN/H<sub>2</sub>O to nickel-nitrogen-porphyrin-porphyrin-ligand (NOPP) type assemblies in yields up to 70% has been demonstrated. The study reveals two different routes depending on the concentration of NH<sub>2</sub>-NH<sub>2</sub>L ligand: (i) formation of ligand-less porphyrin-Ni complexes in the first step and in situ formation of NOPP in the second step upon solvation; (ii) ligand-directed formation of porphyrin-Ni complex and NOPP in the first step and in situ formation of ligand-ligand porphyrin-Ni complex in the second step upon solvation. First step formation of NH<sub>2</sub>-NH<sub>2</sub>L-porphyrin-Ni complex (I) from Ni-TPP in the presence of 0.5 equiv. of NH<sub>2</sub>-NH<sub>2</sub>L (L = p-anisyl) with an equilibrium constant (K) of  $7.42 \pm 0.33 \text{ M}^{-1}$  has been followed by UV/Vis spectrophotometric titrations. In the second step, when the reaction mixture containing I was gradually diluted, a significant shift in the Soret absorption band towards longer wavelength with a concomitant decrease in the extinction coefficient has been observed. The ligand-ligand porphyrin-Ni complex (II) that formed in the second step has been isolated and characterized by ESI-MS and NMR spectroscopic and crystallographic methods. X-ray crystallographic analysis reveals an octahedral geometry with the Ni atom at the Zn-N<sub>2</sub>(hpp) plane of the porphyrin. Two water molecules and one protonated ligand (N-p-anisyl) are linked to the Ni(II) ion through the phenolate oxygen atoms. The Ni-N bond length is 2.0449(17) Å. The geometry around the Ni-N bond is also comparable to that observed in the bulk Ni-Np-p-anisyl complex. This Ni-Np-p-anisyl complex gives a broad EPR signal at  $g = 3.89$

What's New In?

Rick Ross Rejects Claims That Rick Ross Is RickRoss.com It seems that the internet has a lot to say about the possible merge between Rick Ross and the Rick Ross.com website. The site was allegedly started by the rapper on his 35th birthday. Although the website claims to be a place to sell albums, and watches, it actually deals in many different things. It sells everything from checks, to gold, to cars, to baby clothes. They also sell extremely expensive items. You can get a $250,000 handcrafted watch. And don't be fooled, it's definitely not the same as the Rick Ross brand. The website is owned by a company by the name of Selfs, LLC. According to the website, Rick Ross is Selfs. However, Ross has denied any connection to the website and has explained that the site is a complete coincidence. "I've been told many times that the rick ross web site is not me or by my company," Rick Ross said. "It is a complete coincidence. My webmaster is working on some other projects with me and I don't know where the misconceptions came from. I've been trying to make it real clear that the rick ross site is not the same as my brand. I don't want to imply to the consumers that it is." He has also denied the claims that he would merge with the site. "I've been told it is a sign of great wealth and success," Ross said. "If that's true, then I am grateful that I get to share the message of God/Religion with the world. If it is a business, then I don't want to disrespect my creator. I see myself running my own foundation. Anything to do with God will be done by me and not a charity." Although it is hard to believe that the website is not linked to him, there's a good chance that he is not part of it. Life outside the club gets a reality check. The most developed of the three towns that form Gola Dam in the southern sector of the national park of Gola Dallol, Kunti, is the town of Chites. It consists of 10 large extended families with not less than twenty-five members in every family. Life in the town, known for its cattle breeding, is very simple. Children get up early in the morning to drink milk and their
