An experiment in the development of the story we are developing. In the fantasy world of Memory Note where you get into the minds of people from the past, present, and future. It will be very beautiful if you get experience even in the fantasy world of the game. @tremble states in the description of his game for sale on IndieJukebox is that "The game is a cross-platform app with a simple and addictive gameplay at its core." Here it is - the current (late February 2017) IndieJukebox catalog if it helps any: Just checked it out and from what I can tell it's a cross platform html5 game (even though the catalogue states it's just a game client). Here are some of the features in the description: "The game is both single player and multiplayer, you can get into another players mind and challenge them to a game, if you win you get the points that your opponent lost in your game. You can play online with 4 players" I've sent Tremble an email asking for clarification on this and more. Of course, I'm a little out of the loop with my current activities and I don't have much time to give this a closer look. But, I'm very curious to see what he has to say when I finally get a response. I cannot wait! Light and dark would be interesting. I was just looking through the games that are currently available and there aren't too many of them I have time to play. I can see me spending a few hours if I got a chance to. My time is at a premium though as I have no one to work for me right now and work at my regular job doesn't like me spending time on video games right now. Bummer. Anytime - as I would be glad to have you over sometime and play with my Nintendo Wii. Either of you two ever get to Florida this year? I know we both got to Austin a

Beasts Battle Features Key:

Brand new Kawasaki Model T (AKA "Digital")

Modern synth sounds that are incredibly retro-futurist chic. Introspection, pacing, slow bass and driving drums.

Last week, I used Gunship's delays to create an effects/noise-drenched "Mortgage Rap." This week, I'll be using the synthetic sounds in a whole new way, using them in an introspective, "Tech Noir" kind of way.

This new theme will get laser-focused on another new synth: The unique Kawasaki Model T. This synth got its name because it sounded like a car. After playing with it, I must say that it also sounds like a spaceship, too. It also allows me to open up some crazy sound found on the Sylphric Sefron Typhoon.

~~BEASTS BATTLE~~ Features the ability to walk in the darkness and deal damage to your enemies by using the shadows. The Shadow Fighters are your main protection from the Dark Lords due to them being shadow-resistant and being able to use the shadows as their main weapon. ==> LIGHT FIGHTERS The Light Fighters use the sunlight of the lands around them to deal damage to their enemies. The Light Fighters are in more constant battles because the sunlight can blind them and from being out in the light. ==> DARK FIGHTERS The Dark Fighters in DarkMaus have both abilities of the Light and Shadow Fighters and uses Darkness as their main weapon against the enemies in the game. ==> STRATEGISTS In DarkMaus, you can explore the lands, fight bosses, and complete quests. c9d1549cdd

What's new in Beasts Battle:

~W y o~ I hope y'all can meet me next week when I have another costume in store. I will be interviewing the costume maker this week, so this is a good thing for me. Alright I was thinking today that the cosplay season for this year was perfect for another Santa's Helper costume. I needed one, so I went out and got one already. Normally, I would go by costume shops or anime shops. I make the best costumes myself. My favorite so far has to be my Princess Zelda one. So I got a little troubled and started wondering what I would do to create a Santa's Helper costume. Then it hit me, I already had a head santa IRL. So I went to search for a real Santa's helper that I could use to create my costume. I couldn't find any on the Interwebz, but I did find tons of cute images. So I went ahead and made my own. Cough Paldaia*Cough* If you can't guess by my logo, that's an image I made for this cosplay. Now you can ask me what you want when I take y'all to the jc2 shop. I usually charge 10 dollars for that, but I'll give y'all 5 for the top five questions. 1. What games do you usually play? I tend to play video games all day long, and not only for PC's. I actually spend a lot of my free time playing on my laptop. I am addicted to video games, but most always on World of Warcraft. Once upon a time I played a lot of WoW on a Nintendo DS, and a lot of other online games. There was a rhythm game I played, and I randomly bought Smash Bros. for Wii a while back. While playing it, I randomly found that there was a Super Smash Bros. for the PC. It was a Nintendo game, but there was a Smash Bros of it. So I started playing that and got addicted to it. Also, I still buy PC games, though mostly for older games. 2.What comics do you like to read? A random comic I got was Ed Brubaker's Secret Origin. It started off as a storyline for a mini black and white graphic novel. Now it had been serialized on his blog. My all-time favorite comics are I don't know, but I

Yesterday it was released to the public and now it's time to check it out before it's too late. Don't believe us when we say - you'll suck till the end, but it's all a part of the video. We're starting with graphics since as they say, visuals are the most important part. Ok, first thing first, BattleRush: German Snipers is a standalone release. The campaign - there is only a single chapter available as of now. But what are we talking about? The campaign is 7 missions long and makes you to go through Berlin in WWII on a mission to save the country. Alright, how? First, you want to get into a battlefield which is very valuable for the game of course, but also the tutorial is pointed and creates a flow which is for the most part not frustrating even though we'll touch on the pros and cons. It is quite linear as well - there is no option for raising, for example, a tank, which can be a challenge
