Controls: - Tap a button to change the gravity for a certain side: up, down, left and right Instructions: When player starts the game, the red coin is on the red rock. In order to relocate it, player needs to find the right point on the rock to move it with the piece of the red stone. Moving piece of the red stone shouldn't cause the piece of the same color to move with it. If the red coin has moved a certain distance, it is game over. Levels: In the first 50 levels of the game, there are no traps. In the 51st level, there is a trap in the upper right corner. It should be discovered in time. How to progress through the levels: After finishing the first 50 levels, player has to find out the sequence of the trap. In the next levels, there will be traps every other level. But the red coin should be found in every level, even when playing without traps. During the game, the sequence of the trap is changing so player has to find out the sequence in every level. Find out which tiles are accessible and how tiles have to be moved. - Tap - Tap - Tap - Hold to move - Treadmill -... - Treadmill - Treadmill - Treadmill - Treadmill - Treadmill -... - Treadmill Trouble: Sometimes when player moves the tile with the red stone, the tile with the white stone goes with it. In order to avoid this, it is better to move the red stone back to the red stone's side and then move the tile with the red stone. Friday, 17 December 2012 Hello, I was diagnosed with Early Onset GDM last week and have slightly better control than I thought. I went to my weight on day one and my glucose on day two at the end of October. I have no symptoms and my only glucose readings yesterday and today were 109 and 107 which is not very high but I was worried. A week ago my weight was 109 kg and now I am off to eat as I feel full. I am trying not to take any insulin tonight but what would you do please? Anon Hi Anon - thank you for your post. Well done and good luck to you. It sounds like you are in a much better position to look after yourself and your baby. This is the time for you to do your best but you can never be complacent. You must keep your blood glucose level under control at all times. This site can help you to do just that. It has a few tips and ideas for you. It's called Symptoms, Diagnosis & Treatment of GDM Do I really have GDM? Gestational Diabetes Mellitus (GDM) is a condition which occurs just during pregnancy - it affects 3-8 percent of women worldwide. GDM will pass before your baby is born. GDM may affect babies born prematurely or at full term, as well as babies carried to term. Symptoms of a high blood glucose concentration during pregnancy are increased thirst, eating more, increased hunger during pregnancy, abdominal pain, blood pressure changes, and yellowing of the skin and whites of the eyes. Sometimes, women with GDM have no symptoms at all. Why am I getting GDM? There are two reasons why you may get GDM during pregnancy. If you have been diagnosed with GDM yourself, there is no need to panic! All doctors advise that you should do all you can to avoid this condition passing through to your baby, so your first port of call should be finding a GDM risk-reduction programme or lifestyle change. If, however, you have not been diagnosed yourself and have not been told that you have it, then you should ask your doctor about it. How can I lower the risks? If you have been diagnosed with GDM, there are some things you can do to help reduce the risk to you and your baby
