UEFRA1: Urogenital agenesis of the fetus/pedigree database and application in agensis: an added dimension? To make available to the research community the obstetric history of UEFRA1; to give an explanation of the multiple inheritance problems seen in the pedigrees; and to give an update on the current status of the UEFRA1 project. UEFRA1 is an international database which is maintained by the Universite Libre de Bruxelles. It contains information on the pathology of the fetus and newborn from 75 maternity units in 26 countries in Europe, Africa, Asia and the Americas. UEFRA1 is at the present time in its 6th version and there are more than 46.000 parents reported in the database and over 16.000 documented children reported with UEFRA1 type 1A and B. In the paper it is reported the fertility of the parents for their respective nuclear families. There is a report of the multiple inheritance problems which occur with the inheritance of UEFRA1. A table is given of the relative risk of having an affected child for first and second cousins compared with the general population. When the pedigree of a family is completed, a summary is given of the global risk of having an affected child. The UEFRA1 project also makes available the information needed for high level analysis of the pedigrees. While caring for a child with UEFRA1, the health care professional is challenged in many ways. These include problems with early diagnosis, prenatal counselling, complications in delivery and problems with recurrence in subsequent pregnancies. Conflicting data in the literature and the added dimension of the parental fertility should be taken into account when counselling patients with a UEFRA1 diagnosis. The use of a database of the type described here in conjunction with statistical analysis can facilitate the work of the health care professional in the future. Whether you like them or not, we are constantly exposed to media...and a lot of it is BAD! Media, or "media", as you and I like to call it, can be found everywhere, from favorite shows, magazines, and songs, to advertisements, and advertisements that promote the advertising! As such, there can be a good product mixed in with all the junk. It was brought to my attention by a good friend that we too, (humans included,) sometimes get lazy in learning about the good media and magazines that are out there. Let's not get lazy right now! Let's channel our inward wisdom and understanding of what is good for us, all while growing and developing as persons. We'll start simple... Who came up with the first sayings to the effect that we should "read between the lines"? Who came up with the thoughts of a mind being like a muscle? Come on now! We are adults and we need to develop our own media literacy... So, why is media important? Media feeds us! It can take hold of the mind of its audience and eat away at them. Who ever came up with the saying "once a meme, always a meme" must have been right. From the moment a person saw a culture or religion from another part of the world, they thought about it and began to attach beliefs or have beliefs about what they were seeing. Something, however, was missing. They had a lack of knowledge. So, they began to consume media until they learned what they needed to know. Unfortunately, today's media has been crafted by man's flawed desire to build a better world by the sound of our own voice and the self-promotion of the company. Some believed that this was a better way to bring a better world. (There is no evidence for this d41b202975

CD by Jerv First March, 16, 2017: For some reason, I started asking people to donate for this soundtrack, and they thought it was a lot of work for about $4.18, which, in addition to the time I would have to invest to sell copies, wasn't worth it. I thought some people would download, pay, and never feel the urge to contribute. No, this project is not for charity. If you would like to help support independent designers, donate to my T-shirt fund! The first 2 tracks aren't done yet. The whole soundtrack is gonna be on Bandcamp. (By the way, Contact will be published this Spring, so you'll have plenty of time to be able to listen to it, I hope.) In the meantime, enjoy the awesomeness of the original soundtrack for your Android games!
