What's new in Tropico 5 - Joint Venture:

Compilation Introduction Good old multiplayer games have always been part of gaming history. In fact, many classic titles have had them and you could even say Blizzard made them a priority when they were making StarCraft. For single player games, players generally take part in contests and competitions as a means to challenge themselves and get more points, or just to trick their friends. Multiplayer games on the other hand go beyond this. These games are about having fun and having a good game with your friends. From Call of Duties to Tales from the Borderlands; from Overwatch to Dota 2; from Rainbow 6 Siege to Mario Kart; from Minecraft to Final Fantasy. Multiplayer is an important part of the gaming experience, let's get down to it. Youtubers have given rise to the new wave of gaming, and many of them play multiplayer games with friends, just like the 'stars' that previously only played single player games. This has helped raise interest for this sort of game. Some sites even host competitions and competitions between hundreds of players with certain amounts of money given for the winners to get a chance at releasing a new game with their teams of developers. The best part of having a multiplayer game is that you can play it all the time, no matter what time of day it is. The internet can be very busy at any time of day or night. The players that have stuck together can spend hours getting into it, rushing up hill, charging the enemies; defending bases against waves of attackers. When you have a good multiplayer game, you get to know your friends and your enemies, and this is more than a game, it's a community. Community In order for this article to appear, there was a lot of community work that needed to take place and there were a lot of people to thank. You could say where this whole article came from! The people that posted on the Steam forums asking for it, where to post it and to get it found. Those who uploaded the mod, from RG and TH to everyone else who helped upload the mods themselves, from deTritos to ApoUff, the admins who found the mods and integrated them into the forum post, and everyone else who made that forum post and brought it alive. Almost a year since that thread was started and here we are, this article has almost reached its finish line, with a lot of amazing mods to enjoy and a community that makes so many of the players that play these games stronger.
