new Samsung Galaxy Note 9 will feature a 5.8-inch Super AMOLED curved display with a resolution of 1440x3120 pixels, while the device will feature a 12 MP Dual Pixel rear camera with an f/1.5 aperture, and a 10 MP camera with an f/1.7 aperture. The device will be powered by Samsung's new Exynos 9820 Octa SoC, paired with 4GB of RAM and 64GB of built-in storage. As far as the rest of the specifications are concerned, the device will feature a 6,000 mAh battery, a 6.4 mm thickness and a weight of 199 grams. The device will be equipped with Android 9 Pie OS, and it will be available in Blue, Black, and Orchidium Gold colors. Amazon is expected to start the pre-order for the device by mid-September, while those who reserve the device will get it in October.

1. Field of the Invention The invention relates to fluidic connector assemblies and more particularly to an apparatus for removing air bubbles from a fluid system.

2. Description of the Related Art The complexity of industrial fluid systems, particularly air systems such as those encountered in the production of semiconductors, can make simple maintenance and cleaning operations difficult. As a result, maintenance and cleaning activities need to be carried out with due consideration given to the available engineering resources and tools. For example, one popular approach to maintenance and cleaning entails the opening of a manifold to provide unobstructed access for all fluid lines leading to and from the manifold. A problem, which is present whether fluid lines lead through the manifold or not, arises when fluid containing air bubbles is passed through the manifold. Air is often injected into the system by an operator to provide pressure to a tool to apply heat to the wafer. In the absence of pressurization, the air in the system can compress and/or force the heated fluid to the location where it is desired to be injected. Therefore, it is desirable to provide a manifold that allows air to be removed from the system without the need to open the manifold. The industry has tried to address this problem by using screens, for example, in the manifold. These screens are designed to allow air to flow through in order to remove

v. THE STATE. A92A1416. Court of Appeals of Georgia. Decided June 9,

1992. Michael J. Bowers, Attorney General, C. Andrew Fuller, for appellant. Terry A. Hart, for appellee. COOPER, Judge. Appellant was convicted of aggravated assault. The evidence was sufficient to sustain the conviction for the jury's finding that appellant "cause[d] physical injury" to the victim. OCGA § 16-5-21 (a). The issue presented for review, however, is whether OCGA § 16-5-24 (a) applies to a conviction for aggravated assault. We find it does not and affirm. OCGA § 16-5-24 provides: "(a) A person convicted under Code

Section 16-5-21 who commits an assault shall, depending upon the circumstances of the case, be punished as follows:... (2)

If the person commits an assault which results in serious bodily injury, the person shall be guilty of a felony and punished as a recidivist only.... (3) If the person commits an assault which does not result in serious bodily injury, the person shall be guilty of a misdemeanor." (Emphasis supplied.)

OCGA § 16-5-22 defines "serious bodily injury" to include: "bodily injury which involves unconsciousness, extreme physical pain, permanent or temporary disability... or... [a] fracture of any bone, or a permanent or potentially permanent disfigurement." OCGA § 16-5-25 provides: "A person may be convicted of aggravated assault when he attempts to commit an assault, and in the process of doing so, commits an act which, under the circumstances, would constitute an assault...." Appellant's reliance on the underscored phrases in OCGA § 16-5-24 (a) to support his argument that the aggravated assault statute does not apply to the charge of aggravated assault for "causing physical injury" is misplaced. If the facts of the case fail to meet the aggravated assault requirements, then no criminal liability attaches. Hopkins v. State, 165 Ga. App. 556 (2) (300 SE2d 672) (1983)
