More.Involvement of the cyclic AMP pathway in alpha 1-adrenoceptor-induced contractility of the smooth muscle of guinea-pig ileum. The subtype distribution and the pharmacological properties of the alpha 1-adrenoceptors coupled to the inhibition of cyclic AMP accumulation in the smooth muscle of guinea-pig ileum were investigated. The order of potency for alpha 1-adrenoceptor stimulants, prazosin greater than or equal to oxymetazoline greater than cirazoline = UK 14304, was similar to that for the smooth muscle [J. Pharmacol. Exper. Ther. 238: 898, 1985]. Prazosin (1×10^{-7} M) antagonized the noradrenaline-induced inhibition of cyclic AMP accumulation. It also antagonized the effect of the alpha 2-adrenoceptor stimulant, clonidine (1×10^{-7} M). The results suggest that the contractility of the smooth muscle was mediated mainly by alpha 1-adrenoceptors. Isoproterenol-induced inhibition of cyclic
