The data is sent via POST to I have the following script, but I can't seem to get it to work because of the conversion of the data to JSON: `const http = require('http'); http.createServer(function (req, res) { var body = ''; if (req.method === 'POST') { var data = req.body; body = JSON.stringify(data); console.log(body); res.writeHead(200, { 'Content-Type': 'text/plain' }); res.end('Body:'+ body); } else { res.writeHead(404); res.end('Error'); } }).listen(8080, '0.0.0.0');` I'm trying to figure out why I can't send any more data to my server. Using the Network on Chrome I can see the POST is sent, but after the body is sent, Nodejs crashes, even if the response is just a simple Error. This is how I'm sending the data: `var socket = new AndroidClient(AndroidClient.DEVICE, AndroidClient.PORT); socket.connect(); console.log(JSON.stringify(data)); socket.post(data).then(function`

, King of the Skeptics and the Coming of Pindar by Guy Consolmagno (Retd FRSC) The temples of Egyptian mythology are a good place to start if one needs a quick refresher course on the ideas of creation and the afterlife. The original office of the pharaohs was as Ra-Horus, king of the gods and creator of heaven and earth and the firstborn son of Re-Amun (Ra). According to Egyptian mythology, Ra-Horus was one of the patron gods of the pharaohs. In the northern cities of Egypt, Seti I carried out a monumental building program and the splendid temple of Ra-Horus at Abydos, once believed to be the place where the first pharaoh lived in the land of the dead. Inside that temple stands the mummy of Ra-Horus which the pharaoh carried with him for eternity. Similarly, Christians developed ideas about creation, and the afterlife from Egypt. The Old Testament speaks to us of the central figure of Ra-Horus in Genesis 1:2 where the language clearly hints to us that Ra-Horus is essentially the creator of the universe, including the person of the pharaoh. The worship of Ra-Horus was widespread in Ancient Egypt. One inscription of the priests of the temple at Abydos exults to us, "Ra-Horus is your god! All the gods are his, at the temples he has built." The circle of ideas of Ra-Horus continued from Ancient Egypt into contemporary times. Philosophers often debated whether our ideas about creation and the afterlife were derived from Egypt, the Near East, or some other civilization. I visited the Mausoleum of Ra-Horus in Abydos in 2003. The tour guide explained the principles of the mummies there. He told me there were, among other things, several major head bands around the forehead, a sign of the pharaoh's leadership of the nation. A good many of the inner chamber of the mausoleum was empty, but one chamber contained empty sarcophagi. The tour guide implied that these sarcophagi once held the remains of the pharaoh's living companions and family members. Part of the hall had a statue of Ra-Horus standing on his throne next to a representation of his 21st dynasty successor Hatshepsut. The tour guide told me that Hatshe

The group formation formed specifically with the objective of "go head to head". To achieve that goal, they have different battle styles. Annihilator is a tanky hero that uses his weapon-like Field Gun to unload a barrage of bullets at opponents, while Reinhardt is a tanky melee hero with a shield that gives him more armor, and Lucio is a precise healer that is able to buff up his allies with Medic Boots.
