A clinical protocol for the study of uric acid (UA) lowering in patients with hyperuricemia and gout was developed. Allopurinol was used to reduce levels of circulating UA (UA) to baseline levels of about 350 micromol/L. Patients receiving either 100 mg/kg of uricase (urate oxidase, EU) intravenously or 80 mg/kg EU intramuscularly each week for 4 weeks were studied. Levels of UA and other blood chemistry variables were compared. Only EU-treated patients exhibited a statistically significant reduction in UA levels (P Q: Issues with
