Cena returns to Capital Cities wrestling, heading out on a six months itinerary. He intends to visit his daughter Spencer, the same one from MLB Prospect Rankings 2014 and 2015 (#1 and #4 on respective lists). Several more of his family and friends were added as the summer went on. We know he's wrestling three times in Mexico, while scheduled for Madison Square Garden in New York. WWE played an effective video promo to get TV audiences hyped up for his return on Saturday Night Live on September 22. - He used the concert stage well during next week's Eight Bells. - WWE's website reacted to the Florida state passing of Rick Santorum and Mitt Romney's (supposed) endorsement of Trump. The video was a combination of the UConn men's basketball team led by Shabazz Napier, CSN New England's Mary Carillo, audio from Carillo's most recent interview, and the text displayed, summarized, then followed by Carillo's appearance and words. John Cena showed up on the Big Show's World Tour working as a road agent, appearing along with his pal Kane. He also appeared on the following week's show in Georgia. - A flurry of WWE WWE backstage photos appear online from this past weekend. You'll be able to see the two in the background of these a bit later down the road. - The other NXT babyfaces open up their entire lines in this promo while Shinsuke Nakamura creates a distraction. - In case the NXT live events are getting stale, the WWE Twitter account has released a couple of photos from the live events, with Wokenness inviting fans to submit pictures of their favorite smiley faces. - Eight Bells' wrestler Tony Nese has returned under the Von Erichs identity because that is what the Natural Born Thrilla: Encore (1999) character never stopped using the WWE website as he left the company. Those familiar with the Natural Born Thrilla stories will know he left the company not long after, purportedly because someone he faced in that match died of an overdose while wrestling. In a recent video interview for the AEW Rising podcast, which you can listen to below, the subject of Women's wrestling is raised, and is definitely not a positive one for women's wrestling. In fact, he makes quite a few claims in this
