The introduction of the technology into games, with FIFA 22 as a first step, will enable players to experience every touch and tackle like never before. FIFA 22 is the most advanced version of the FIFA game yet. It features the most realistic football atmosphere with new game engine and audio technologies. The new gameplay engine is the culmination of all that the franchise has learnt in the last two years. It delivers a more sophisticated and realistic match experience while also allowing players to accelerate, decelerate and sprint more naturally and in-context. This new engine also means new animations such as the precise, natural landing and strike of a header and the first-time pro-line tacks of a feinting pass. The new physics engine implements live physics across the pitch, ball and goalkeeping, thereby delivering the most realistic and responsive ball control and play. The visuals have been optimised to utilise the XBOX One hardware, which makes the game look stunning on the console. FIFA 22 introduces "HyperMotion Technology," which uses motion capture data collected from 22 real-life players playing a complete, high-intensity football match in motion capture suits. The data collected from player movements, tackles, aerial duels and on-ball actions is used to power FIFA 22 gameplay. "World class football is played around the world, which is why we have invested so heavily in our technology. We have worked with innovative industry partners to create an unparalleled, player-led, data-driven football experience," said Peter Rydell, Executive Vice President of Publishing & Operations, Electronic Arts. "The new technology allows us to expand the game in ways unimaginable even two years ago. In FIFA 22, our skill-based training engine introduces a new 'skills screen' for all Academy teams, players and managers, which offers a whole new level of customization and feedback. This will help players unlock new skill types, drills and drills to improve their understanding of the game and help them enhance their skills over their career." FIFA is the EA SPORTS FIFA franchise, featuring licensed top-tier sports including FIFA 19, FIFA Ultimate Team and the FIFA series on Nintendo Switch. FUSION MATCHMAKING. The king is back. FIFA 19 changes everything. FIFA 19 was already the biggest FIFA game ever, with over 45 million players across PlayStation 4, Xbox One, PC, and Nintendo Switch, but what would FIFA 22 look like? After working on FIFA 18 and 19, the FIFA development team at EA Canada and Visual Concepts are working on what's next. In fact, after building the first iteration of the game, they've come back with new ideas, new technology, and new gameplay to make FIFA the game it once was. The goal is to put back the fun. "It's what we like to call the fun factor, the focus on the relationship between the ball and players," says Visual Concepts head of gameplay Richie Pannell. "At the end of the day, we want to make sure that people are having a great time with the game and a lot of that stuff is fun for them. That's the focus for us - and we're going to make it as fun as we can." That means keeping the game balanced, but also revolutionizing the way players tackle the game. It's about making it very intuitive so players don't need to spend hours on tutorials and practice. "That's something we've really been looking at in the past," says Pannell. "The beauty of the game is that it's very accessible, but we want to take it to the next level." For a game as old as FIFA, that means getting faster, making more decisions in real time, and improving the decisions you make in the heat of the action. For example, as part of a series of simple changes the team is implementing to reduce the number of button taps players need to make in game, players can now call on their teammates to help them out or pick a spot for a pass on the pitch. What that means is players will have more of a chance to choose when and where they use specific skills and abilities. In the past, you'd make a play, then make another one, and then make the last play - but the team is implementing the ability to make multiple plays in one play. That means players can come back to the ball, break, make and go; all in one play.
